

Ottawa Police - Negative

- Comparisons being made with Toronto: John Tory is mobilizing police to clear out tents from Toronto parks to allow enough space for police to monitor.
- Quiz circulating: Do you have a police force in your city or do you live in Ottawa?
- Citizens say Ottawa police have multiple options – declaring unlawful assembly, seeking a court injunction, deploying additional RCMP resources or acting to remove the demonstrators. Also many references to the NCC land being taken over
- Lots of people today saying that the typical Ottawa police enforcement against protesters is violence. Now when we have people who are truly a real danger to citizens they are standing around watching. Many questioning the value of a police force that is not there when you need them
- References to the Paul Champ lawsuit: Citizens feel abandoned. The police won't help them and now there is no remedy in the courts. People it will be dangerous as it will encourage people to take the law into their own hands

Ottawa police - Less Negative

- Some sympathy for the police: Occupiers put up a bouncy castle to attract kids, and have their own kids there, using children as “human shields” knowing police will be reluctant to take action with kids in close proximity. Questions about whether kids and bouncy castles belong at protests.
- This isn't a protest, it is an occupation. This is really getting traction. Why are we treating this like a protest?
- Some people saying the police hands are tied they can't impound trucks for noise violations. But can they get an injunction with the court telling them what they can do and what those parameters would look like?
- People speaking a lot about how the police don't want other counter protesters out on the street – so that message is getting through

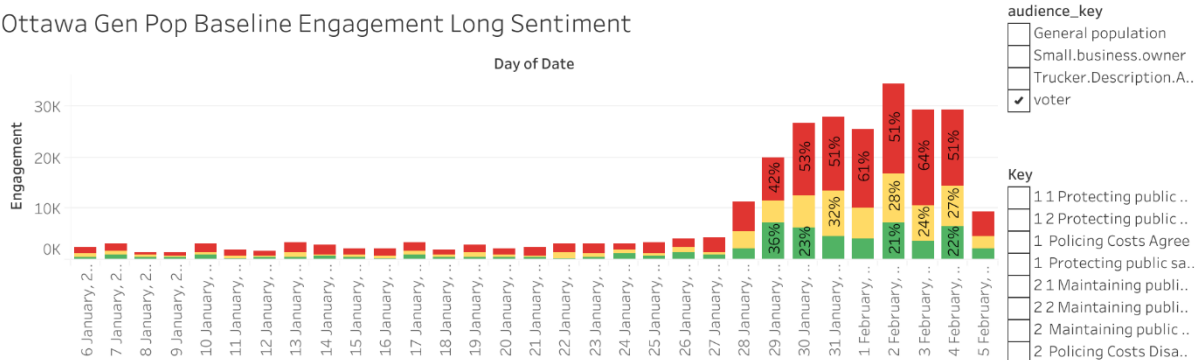

Counter-Protestors

- Increasing negativity on the topic of counter-protesters. With the incident in Winnipeg and the tensions here people feel that things could blow over
